By Lieutenant Colonel, B. C. Tilghman, Jr., Third Infantry

THE first exercise at which the visiting officers of the various National Guards were present was No. 5, on Monday, September 29th. This problem consisted of the contact of the opposing forces. The general situation, which was known to both sides, was as follows:

"A western force (Blue), with headquarters near Abilene, Kansas, is operating against a Brown Force advancing from the east. A division of the latter has reached Stockdale."

Special Situation (known only to the commander of the Blue Forces).

Colonel R.—— is encamped on Republican River Bottom near the Race Track on the Ft. Riley Reservation. His command is composed as follows:

Sixth Infantry, Battalion Engineers, acting as Infantry, Nineteenth, Twentieth and Twenty-eighth Batteries, Field Artillery, First Squadron, Eighth Cavalry. He received the following order:

Headquarters Blue Forces,
Abilene, Kansas, Sept. 28, '02.

Field Order No. 1.

Colonel R.—— with troops under his command, now encamped on the Ft. Riley Reservation, will make a reconnaisance in force towards Stockdale, Kansas, to gain information in regard to the enemy reported in that vicinity, said to consist of all arms, about ten thousand strong. Colonel R.—— will move at 9 A. M. to-morrow, the 29th inst.

By Command of Major General (Blue).
A. R. Greene,
Adjutant General.

Memorandum for the Blue:

The line of march from Ft. Riley will be via Hay Camp Springs.

Special Situation (known only to the Brown Commander).

A Brown division of all arms is encamped near Stockdale, Kansas. Colonel M.——, commanding an advance brigade, is encamped on the upper part of Three Mile Creek, near the Reservation line. He learns that a small brigade of the enemy, all arms, was encamped at Junction City, yesterday, and at this hour, 9 A. M., it is reported that the Blue Force is moving via Ft. Riley towards Hay Camp Springs. He decides to attack, and to capture the enemy if possible, or at least to drive him from his direct line of retreat through Junction City. He issues the following order:

Headquarters Advance Brigade,
Brown Forces, Fort Riley Reservation, Kansas.
Sept, 29th, 1902, 9 A. M.

Field Order No. 1.

A Blue brigade of all arms is reported to be advancing through Junction City en route to Hay Camp Springs, this Reservation.

FIELD, STAFF AND NON-COMMISSIONED STAFF NINTH INFANTRY IN WINTER QUARTERS DURING THE RECENT INDUSTRIAL DISTURBANCES

This command will move immediately to attack. If possible the enemy will be driven from his direct line of retreat through Junction City. The enemy is reported to be especially strong in artillery.

By command of Colonel M——,

R. L. H.——,
Captain 22nd Infantry,
Adjutant General.

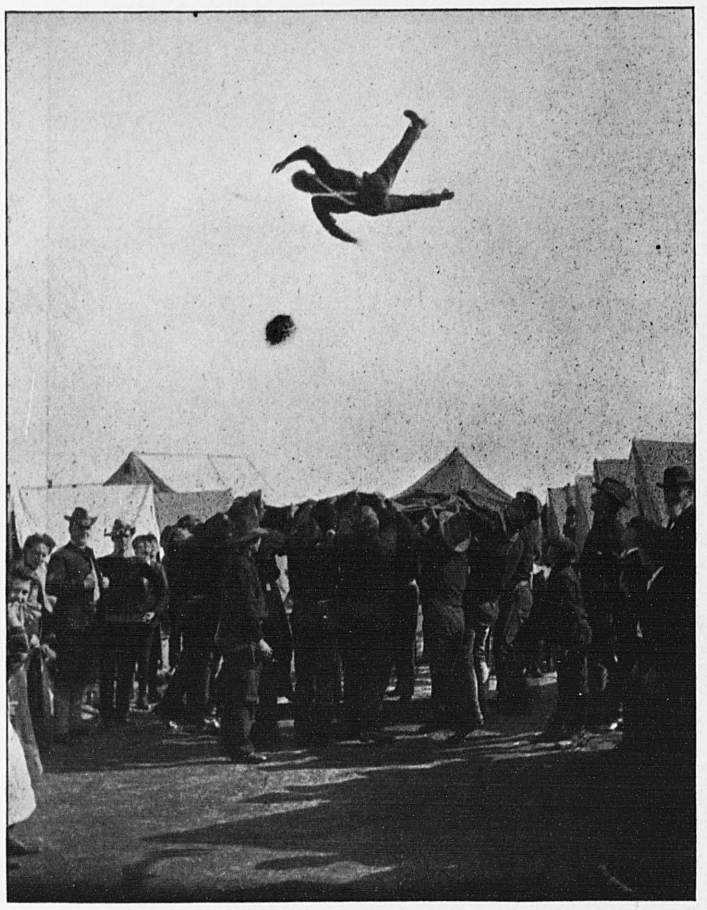
Memorandum:

The Brown force consists of the following organizations:

Eighteenth and Twenty-second Infantry; Sixth and Seventh Batteries Field Artillery; First and Second Squadrons Fourth Cavalry.

The Brown force will move from its position on Three Mile Creek at 9.15 A. M.

(The localities referred to in the description of these movements can be found upon the map of the Reservation published in the last number of the "State Army and Navy.")



A "SHIRKERS" TREATMENT IN OUR TWELFTH INFANTRY

The morning of this exercise was extremely disagreeable. The weather was rainy and cold and rather thick, rendering the observation of troops at a distance uncertain and difficult. The two columns left the maneuver camp about half past seven o'clock, and the visiting officers left camp about 8.45 A. M., riding direct to Morris' Hill. On their arrival at Morris' Hill neither of the two combatants was in sight. The above problem was then read to them. The problem before the commander of the Blue force was rather difficult, as his force was decidedly inferior in strength to the Brown force, and he was confined by the conditions of the problem to move by a single specified route.

As was shown later, the Brown commander decided to attempt to turn the right flank of the Blue force, and to conceal his real intentions, he sent a single troop of cavalry to make a demonstration upon the left flank of the Blue force, in both of which objects he was successful.

The Blue force moved at the hour designated through the Pump House Canon past Rock Springs in the following formation:

Advance party: Troops C and D, Eighth Cavalry. Support: Troops A and B, Eighth Cavalry; one company Engineers (as infantry); Nineteenth Field Battery. Reserve: two and one-half companies Engineers (as infantry); one company Engineers (mounted); Signal party.

Main Body: One battalion Sixth Infantry; Twentieth and Twenty-eighth Field Batteries; seven companies Sixth Infantry; one section of Ambulance Company, No. 3; Signal party. Rear Guard: one company Sixth Infantry.

At about 9.20 A. M. the advance party of the Blue force was first observed from Morris' Hill, emerging from the Pump House Canon. Its formation was rather that of a small cavalry screen than that of an ordinary advance party. The two troops composing it were spread out on a broad front, of which at least one mile was visible from Morris' Hill, and which was afterwards seen to be nearly three miles from flank to flank, the men riding either as single scouts or in pairs. When first seen, Morris' Hill appeared to be the extreme right of the line and no scouts were seen to the southward of this point. On arriving at Morris' Hill and the line of high ground running northwest from this point, the scouts halted and awaited reinforcements, being very considerably in advance of their support. After a halt of about ten minutes, at about 9.45, they were supported by the two troops and a battery of the support and again pressed forward, disappearing into the valley of Forsyth Drive. About this time the right wing of the advance party came up and went forward to the eastward of Morris' Hill into the upper valley of One Mile Creek. About this time, or a few minutes earlier, contact had occurred somewhere on the extreme left of the Blue line between the Blue scouts and the troop of Brown cavalry sent out to make a false demonstration upon this flank. This contact was not known until afterwards by the visiting officers at Morris' Hill on account of the wind and rain making it both beyond sight and hearing, but as subsequently found, it had a marked effect upon the result of the exercise. During this time the main body of the Brown force was moving down the White's Ranch Road to the mouth of Three Mile Creek and thence behind the crest of Sheridan Bluffs entirely concealed from the observation of the Blue scouts. The Crest of Sheridan Bluffs was held by the Brown scouts, but they kept themselves carefully concealed, and up to this time no idea of their presence was obtained by the Blue forces.

One troop of the Blue support dismounted and deployed for action on top of Morris' Hill, facing about northeast, and the battery remained in column under shelter of the Hill; the other troop went off somewhere to the left out of sight of Morris' Hill. By this time the head of the main body of the Blue force could be seen about Rock Spring and the reserve between this point and Morris' Hill. While the right wing of the Blue advance cavalry was still within sight of Morris' Hill, the first contact was had with the Brown scouts about half to three-fourths of a mile to the southeast of Morris' Hill, on the headwaters of One Mile Creek. A few shots were exchanged and a scout was observed riding from the point of contact back towards the main body of the Blue force with information. The Nineteenth Field Battery now went into battery on Morris' Hill, facing about southwest and fired a few rounds at small parties of Brown cavalry seen on the hill above Sheridan's Bluffs. The battery was now supported by a battalion of engineers dismounted, and the whole Blue force could be seen deploying for action on a line facing about northeast, of which Morris' Hill appeared to be the right flank. So far nothing whatever had been learned of the whereabouts of the main body of the Brown forces. This deployment was practically completed at about 10.20, and during its completion there was continuous light skirmishing between the Blue and the Brown scouts at about the point where the first contact was had on One Mile Creek. At 10.32 the Nineteenth Battery on Morris' Hill was opened upon by a battery from Sheridan's Bluffs, and a few minutes later this battery was reinforced by a second. The range was about 2,700 yards and the duel continued for about twenty minutes, during which the Blue

THE annual Spring inspections throughout the Division have now practically been completed. Of course, at this early date nothing is known of the relative standing of any organization and it is probable that it will be well on toward camp time before the report of the Inspector General, which embodies the reports of the various inspecting officers, will reach the public. The reports of the individual inspectors are to be made to the Inspector General prior to May 25 and must then be digested by him before he forwards his own report.

So far as can be seen by the general public and those officers outside the Inspector General's Department, the tour has developed much that is to the credit of the Guard. While the attendance fell off in some quarters, it was generally very good. It was particularly so in the companies located in the coal regions and from whom, by reason of their location, a slump was naturally to be expected. There are twenty-six companies located in the anthracite coal region. Of these fifteen receive 100 per cent. in attendance and the other eleven varied from two to nine absentees, with an average of five to the company.

In the matter of drill, the division has held its own. There were companies which fell behind their previous records and companies which need attention, but the Guard generally seems to be in even better condition than the most optimistic had believed when last Fall's tour of duty and the outside influences are taken into consideration.

That is as far as the unofficial inspector can go in his judgment. All other parts of the inspection are such that the man on the outside cannot even hazard a good guess.

And now as to the method used in rating the various organizations of the Guard. Is our present system the best? Do the publication of the figures accomplish what is most sought, the betterment of the companies? Would it not be better to publish the criticisms of the inspecting officers, so that all can read the shortcomings of each command. In the majority of cases nobody ever sees these criticisms after they reach the company commander and they thus fail of their purpose. He regards them as a personal matter, a reflection upon himself that nobody need see. Would it not be better that all of the men of the company should see them and that all of the Division should see what each component part is doing?

Let this not be regarded as any reflection upon the markings of the inspecting officers. They all work honestly and conscientiously and mark in the same spirit. Let no fault be found therefore, with the ratings they give. The sole question is one of whether or not there is a better system, on by which better results can be gained through giving all the benefit of the criticisms which now reach but one in a company.

NOW that the reorganization of and the inspection of the Pennsylvania Guard by the United States Army officers in compliance with the (Dick Bill) are assured facts, the matter of a signal corps company to be attached to the Guard is one that looms up as prominently as any other. Its necessity has been unquestioned for some years back by thoughtful officers of the Guard who observed the conditions that obtained whenever the troops were called on for active duty, and particularly was this so during the strike of last year, when the various commands were scattered over a considerable expanse of territory.

During the Homestead strike an emergency signal corps was organized, and its effective work in signalling from division headquarters to provisional brigade headquarters on the opposite side of the river is a matter of Guard history. In every experience of a similar nature since that time an emergency signal corps has been organized, and has done effective duty.

Last year, the running of telephone lines, and work of similar character should have been done by this branch of the service, and, in some instances, was done by the signal corps of the different regiments. The organization of signal corps by the different regimental commanders, in their commands, only goes to further show the necessity of such a branch of the service.

That it would not be difficult to secure men who would go to make up this organization goes without saying. There is hardly a command in the guard, that does not have on its roll, men who could do full duty in the corps, being practical electrical men, and many of them expert telegraph operators. Instances where the men have personally undertaken to learn the heliograph and the "wig wag" are numerous, showing that the organization would be a popular branch of the service.

As to the location of such an organization should it be added to the Guard, the writer does not believe it would be wise to have it in any of the larger cities, such as Pittsburg or Philadelphia, but would be far better to locate it in some of the smaller cities, as Williamsport, Johnstown, Harrisburg, York, or Altoona.

In the cities of the above size the topographical conditions surrounding any one of them are more advantageous for the proper training of men in this line of work than the conditions surrounding the larger cities. In nearly all the cases above mentioned, it is but a short distance from the city proper to the extreme rural districts, where the men would be compelled, in case it were necessary, to erect a telegraph or telephone line, to exercise their ingenuity to a greater extent, in order to get the line in shape, than they would nearer the more urban localities, where facilities would be almost at hand for the asking. Again, these rural sections furnish better opportunities for handling the "helio" or the "wig wag," because of the greater distances that are free from buildings, etc., that obstruct the vision, and again, because in these sections the conditions that obtain in active service are more nearly reached.

NOTES

First Regiment

The anniversary parade of this regiment on April 19th was one of the finest turnouts the organization ever made. The men looked superbly well and the pass in review was exceedingly well rendered. The annual parade of this time-honored command is one of the events looked forward to by the citizens of Philadelphia. It is quite a notable fact that once a First Regiment man, always that. Among the many groups of spectators along Broad street, between Chestnut and Walnut streets, were seen some old timers of the organization who looked upon the veteran and active command with much admiration. Many of these gentlemen wore the motto "Paratus" of the regiment and on this occasion took particular care to display them on their waist and top coats.

Third Regiment

This season's rifle practice promises to be an interesting one in the Third Infantry. Colonel B. C. Tilghman, Jr. intends presenting a valuable trophy to be competed for by battalion teams, and through the influence of Capt. J. Clayton Erb, Quartermaster of the Regiment, an inter-company prize will be offered, which trophy will be one of the finest ever given a command for competitive purposes. Three consecutive victories are required in each of the contests before the trophy becomes the battalion or company property.

Capt. J. Clayton Erb, Quartermaster of the Third Regiment Infantry, and formerly First Lieut. of Company "F," tendered to his old company on Thursday evening, April 30th, an informal smoker and luncheon. A fine musical and vocal programme also enlivened the occasion.

Major Wm. S. Millar, the Assistant Adjutant General of the Third Brigade, has resigned from the service owing to pressure of business. Major Millars has been connected with the Guard since 1877 and the State loses in his retirement a faithful and efficient officer, who for many years served with distinction as the Third Brigade Inspector.

Fourth Regiment

Colonel C. T. O'Neill, commanding the Fourth Infantry, has secured transportation for his entire regiment and Companies "I" of the 13th and "H" of the 8th to parade in Allentown on June 3d sa escort to the Department of Pennsylvania, G. A. R., which will hold its annual encampment at this time. This is the second time in the history of the regiment that its entire force has assembled in this city. Elaborate preparations are being made to entertain the guests and the occasion promises to be one of the events in the history of Lehigh County.

Companies "A" and "I" of this regiment were inspected on April 23d and 24th, at the Auditorium in the city of Reading, and presented in each case very excellent companies. After the inspections Col. O'Neill, Major Clarke and several other visiting officers were entertained at luncheon by Captains Potteiger and Seider. The visiting friends of the companies were treated to a short programme of dancing.

Fifth Regiment

The dates for the inspection of the companies of the Fifth Regiment, have been fixed as follows: Company A, Huntingdon, April 28; Company E, Clearfield, April 29; Company B, Bellefonte, April 30; Company G, Lewistown, and regimental field and staff, May 1; Company D, Blairsville, May 5; Company F, Indiana, May 6; Company H, Johnstown, May 7, and Company C and regimental hospital corps, May 8.

Eighth Regiment

Company "B" of this regiment, located at Tamaqua, and commanded by Capt. Shepp will have its State property inspected on May 9th. This practically means a Board of Survey to determine the responsibility of shortage. Capt. Russell, the former commander, it is stated, failed to make an inventory to Capt. Shepp, and the latter has positively refused to assume any responsibilities in this connection whatever.

Ninth Regiment

The military ball of Company "C," of this regiment, which was held at their armory in Pittstown on the evening of April 27th, was a great social and financial success. Quite a number of military guests were present as well as distinguished citizens from that locality. Capt. Colony and the committee are to be congratulated upon the excellent arrangements. Affairs of this kind always tend to create an interest in the organization besides bringing the company prominently before the public. It is a feature that is highly beneficial to our service.

Capt. John W. Doran has officially arranged to transfer his Company "E" from Parsons to Wilkes-Barre, and it will not be long before this company will be one of the leaders in the State under his command and administration.

Thirteenth Regiment

The parade, review and presentation of marksmen's decorations and trophies on Tuesday evening, April 22d, was the greatest event of its kind in the history of the regiment. Major General Chas. Miller, who for the first time visited this armory, was agreeably surprised at the immense size of the structure and the many modern facilities and comforts contained therein. General Miller received the pass in review and was accompanied by his entire staff, who appeared in full dress uniform. They were the guests of Colonel Watres at his residence in the afternoon. After the ceremonies at the armory, Colonel James W. Oakford informally banquetted the local and visiting officers at the Scranton Club.

The Palma trophy on this occasion was triumphantly carried on the spear head of the National colors by Color Sergt. Chas. Sickler. It is disc shaped, of solid sterling silver, surmounted by la laure wreath and gold cross rifles and on it is given the following inscription:

1880. Sept. 29, 1880, at Nay Aug Range. Score 599.

1883. October 12, 1883, at Nay Aug Range. Score 663.

1884. August 27, 1884, over 8th Regt. Team, at Camp Garfield. Score 656.

This trophy was offered for competition in marksmanship between teams of 12 in separate organizations of the National Guard of Pennsylvania, by Colonel Henry M. Boies, the founder of Rifle Practice in the State, and the first Colonel of the Thirteenth Infantry. It is said that the prize cost nearly $1,000.

Capt. L. B. Carter, the Inspector of Rifle Practice, is deserving of special mention for his untiring efforts in qualifying the entire command in marksmanship and his report of this department is a masterpiece that might be of considerable interest to other organizations.

CAPT. FRANK DEITRICK'S COMPANY "A," NINTH INFANTRY, DURING THE INDUSTRIAL DISTURBANCES

caissons behind Morris' Hill were fired upon by dismounted cavalry from the valley of One Mile Creek at a range of about 500 yards and compelled to change their position. They were judged to have had one caisson disabled. At about 10.50 the Twentieth Field Battery took position about 600 yards to the south of Morris' Hill and opened fire on the Brown artillery. At that time it was almost unsupported, being beyond the effective support of the battalion of engineers, although somewhat to the rear of the Blue line. The Blue force was by this time engaged in making a complete change of front so as to face southeast, as the Brown attack was now fully developed from this direction. During this movement, at 11.05, a strong line of dismounted cavalry skirmishers appeared from the woods in the valley of One Mile Creek to the south of the Twentieth Battery and not more than 600 yards from it. The battery at once turned its fire upon them, but notwithstanding, they advanced rapidly with but little loss, as they were in widely extended order and delivered a heavy fire upon the battery at a distance of not more than 300 yards. The battery would have soon been put out of action, but a battalion of the Sixth Infantry was close at hand behind the ridge, moving to take its place in line on the new front, and upon hearing this sudden attack moved forward in double time and on passing the crest of the ridge found itself fairly upon the flank of the Brown dismounted cavalry and not more than 250 yards from it. This infantry at once halted and delivered a rapid magazine fire upon the Brown cavalry, which forced it into instant and disorderly flight down the hill into the timber from which it had emerged, followed by volleys from the infantry, delivered into the woods into which they retreated. Notwithstanding their rescue by this infantry, the Twentieth Field Battery was judged to have suffered very severely by this attack, and the Nineteenth Battery on Morris Hill, finding it could no longer support the action against the two batteries on Sheridan's Bluffs, attempted to withdraw, but was fired upon by both of its opponents with rapid fire, while limbering; and was judged to have been totally wrecked and put out of action. Later its place was taken by the Twenty-eight Field (Mountain) Battery. By this time the attack of the main body of the Brown force was fully developed, the two regiments being formed for attack side by side in three lines, and the Blue change of front having been completed, the two forces were confronting each other at such a short distance that actual contact was inevitable in a few moments, and the exercises were then broken off for the day.

The movements of the Blue force made it evident that its commander expected that the Browns would attempt to turn his left flank. He was apparently confirmed in this belief by the attack of the single Brown troop which was sent to his left for this purpose. The lateness of the right flank of his line of cavalry scouts and the consequent absence of any news of the enemy on his right flank also seemed to confirm this idea. The Blue force was fully deployed for battle before any actual and positive news of the position of the Brown main body was obtained, and was therefore compelled to make a change of front and new deployment for battle while in actual contact with the enemy, and the usual results of such a course followed. At the time the action was broken off the Blue force was thoroughly committed to the results of a battle with an enemy stronger than itself in all arms and nearer to the Blue line of retreat than was the Blue force itself. The only question as to the ultimate result was, how severe would have been the misfortune to the Blue forces?

HEADQUARTERS NATIONAL GUARD OF PENN'A.

ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,

HARRISBURG, April 23, 1903.

General Orders No. 16.

I. Pursuant to announcement made in G. O. No. 11, A. G. O., c. s., an inspection of the several organizations of the National Guard will be made, with a view of obtaining certain necessary information precedent to the execution of certain provisions of the act of Congress, entitled "An act to promote the efficiency of the Militia and for other purposes."

II. The following named officers of the United States Army have been designated by the Commanding General, Department of the East, United States Army, Headquarters, Governor's Island, New York, as inspecting officers, and have been assigned as follows:

To First Brigade, Captain C. W. Kennedy, adjutant Eighth Infantry.

To Second Brigade, Captain M. B. Stewart, Eighth Infantry.

To Third Brigade, Captain Wm. O. Johnson, Sixteenth Infantry.

III. Brigade Commanders will arrange dates for inspection, in their respective Brigade, and advise the Adjutant General promptly as to schedule.

IV. The inspection of the several organizations, will be conducted in light marching order in blue uniform, fatigue cap, leggins not to be worn. Regimental Field and Staff, troops of cavalry and Batteries of Artillery will be inspected dismounted.

V. Overcoats, duck uniforms, campaign hats, leggins, haversack, knives, forks, spoons, tin cups, meat ration cans, cooking equipment, knapsacks, blankets and ammunition, will be exhibited in such manner that quantities may be noted and condition examined by the inspecting officer. Retained copy of statement of State property furnished commanding officers for recent inspection will be exhibited for information of inspection officer.

VI. Inspection Roll of command will be presented to inspecting officer, as indicated in G. O. No. 11, A. G. O., c. s.

VII. Commanding officers will familiarize themselves with and adhere to, instructions contained in G. O. No. 11, A. G. O., c. s.

By order of SAMUEL W. PENNYPACKER,
Governor and Commander-in-Chief.

THOMAS J. STEWART,
Adjutant General.

It is stated that a son of Colonel Louis A. Watres, of the 13th Infantry, is about entering one of the standard nautical Institutes in view of taking an examination for admission into the U. S. Naval Academy at Annapolis.

The week of May 30th promises to be a gala one in Scranton, when, under the auspices of the 13th Regiment, a most unique exhibition will be held under several acres of canvas. Major Frank Robling, Jr., as chairman of the committee, promises to present an attraction that will eclipse anything of the kind ever seen in this section of the country. The many separate side shows under the main tent will alone require the service of thirty odd ticket takers and a full company of the regiment will be on guard each evening. The character of the entertainment will comprise acrobatic and athletic feats, epuestrian performances, and in fact everything that a Barnum or Forepaugh's circus could produce.

Second Troop

Second Lieutenant Charles Welsh Edmunds, who has been on leave of absence for three months, travelling in Egypt, Palestine, Austria and Germany, will return May 15th.

Orders have been issued for a dismounted field drill of the Troop on Saturday, May 9th, and for mounted field drills on Saturdays, May 23d and June 6th.

Sergeant J. William Good has been detailed as Guidon and Stable Sergeant, and Sergeant William Wallace Adams, Jr., as Commissary Sergeant.

Rehearsals are being held twice a week for the "Drummer Boy," or "Spy of Shiloh," which is being presented the first week of June at the Bijou Theatre, under the auspices of Battery "B."

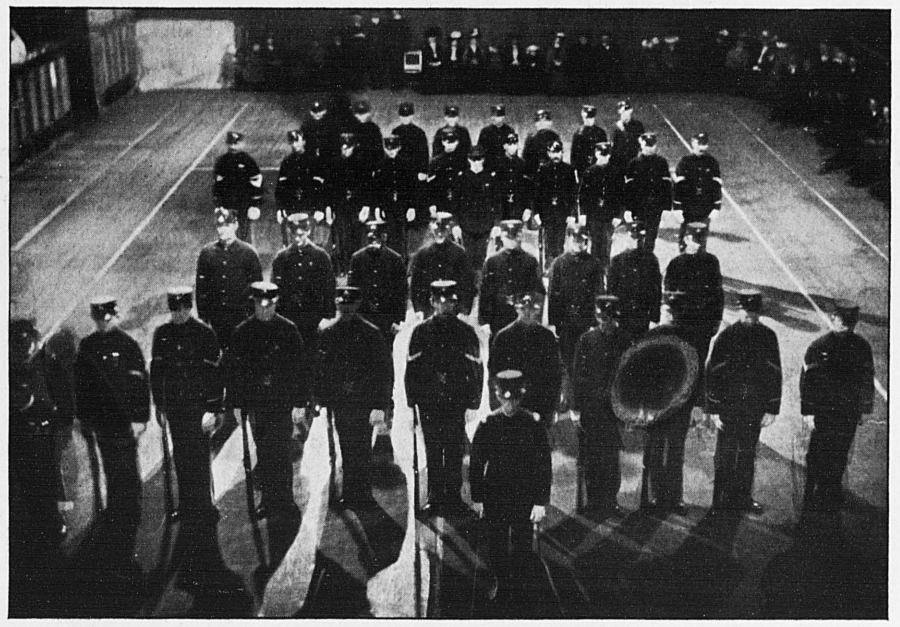
Battery "B" will be inspected in its new armory on Tuesday evening, May 12th, by Col. Sheldon Potter, of Philadelphia.

State

Much speculation is rife among the officers of the Guard as to the outcome of the present inspections conducted by the United States Army officials. An expression from several prominent officers would indicate that under the new conditions imposed upon the Guard the service would be much lighter, as a more desirable class of young men will be readily secured to enlist in what now practically means a United States reserve force.

Major Chas. H. Worman, Inspector of the First Brigade, and Major Wm. P. Clarke, Inspector of the Third Brigade, have mutually agreed to recommend to the Inspector General, Col. Frank G. Sweeney, that the rating of clothing at these inspections be eliminated.

It is stated that Major Milton A. Gherst, who several years ago resigned as Assistant Adjutant General of the Third Brigade, owing to his removal from Headquarters will again enter the Guard and probably fill his oid position as A. A. G.



INSPECTION NIGHT OF COMPANY "G," 9th INFANTRY, (CAPT. CALVIN PARDEE, JR.) IN THEIR MAGNIFICENT ARMORY AT HAZLETON, AFRIL 13th.

At the Troop's Annual Dinner on March 14th, Captain Schermerhorn was presented with a sabre, the gift of the members of the Troop. General Gobin, of the Third Brigade, and General Schall, of the First Brigade, the commanders of the two brigades in which the Troop served during its 67 days in the coal regions last Fall, were guests of the Troop at this dinner, with their staff officers.

Sheridan Troop

Much interest is always displayed by the citizens of Tyrone in the Spring inspections of the Sheridan Troop. This year the platoons located at Warrior's Mark and Sinking Valley rode overland and reported to Major Jones mounted, quartering their steeds at Headquarters. Colonel John P. Penney, the Division Inspector, found the command in excellent condition and their drill far above the standard of last year. It was also the only troop who this season demonstrated to the Division Inspector the pistol drill.

Lieut. Robert A. Zentmeyer, Quartermaster of the Sheridan Troop, was united in marriage to Miss Edna M. Taylor, on the evening of April 22d. A host of military and civilian friends attended the wedding. Many gifts and kind wishes were presented to the happy couple.

Battery "B"

The alterations on the "Hunt Armory," occupied by Battery "B," are about completed and the members of that organization feel proud that they have at last secured a home through their own efforts.

Lieut. Col., Geo. Brooke, Jr., A. D. C.

Another of the popular appointments on the staff of the commander-in-chief is Lieut. Col. Geo. Brooke, Jr., A. D. C. He is a member of the oldest family of that name of Birdsboro, being a son of George Brooke, one of the most prominent men in the iron trade of Eastern Pennsylvania. His family have lived at Birdsboro since 1788, when his grandfather in that year purchased from Marks Bird (from whom the town takes its name) the iron works. Since then the property has remained in the same hands. Colonel Brooke is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, in which institution he received the degree of Ph. B. After spending several years in the employ of the E. & G. Brooke Iron Co., serving in various capacities, he was finally made secretary and one of the directors of the company. He is also affiliated with the Diamond Drill and Machine Co., a Director of the First National Bank and President of the Electric Light Co. He has always taken a keen interest in the local and county politics and is now serving his ninth year as Councilman of the town. He has adopted all measures for better government and improvements in the Borough. He lives most of the year in Birdsboro, with the exception of the winter months, when he resides in Philadelphia, where he is a member of the Philadelphia, Rittenhouse and Country Clubs. Colonel Brooke has also travelled extensively abroad and in this country and will without doubt make a valuable acquisition to the military family of our esteemed Governor Pennypacker.
